E PENNANT TO BE PRESENTED TODAY

Col. Robert T. Stevens Presents Pennant Today

COL. ROBERT T. STEVENS

Col. Robert T. Stevens, Chief of the Clothing and Textile Branch, Procurement Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, who will formally present the Army-Navy E pennant this afternoon, serves as an example of the type of business man who has been called into active service in the army to handle the many complex problems of military procurements.

Col. Stevens is a veteran of the First World War and a leading figure in the textile industry. He resigned the presidency of one of the nation's largest textile distributing organizations and directorates in some fifteen other business corporations in order to accept appointment in the army and use his talents for Uncle Sam.

He entered the army on January 15, 1942 at the request of Maj. E. G. Gregory, the Quartermaster General, and Maj. Gen. C. L. Corbin, Director of Procurement in the Office of the Quartermaster General. He was promoted to his present rank on December 3, 1943 and has the responsibility of administering and coordinating the Quartermaster Corps textile procurement policies established by Gen. Corbin.

Born in Fanwood, N. J. on July 31, 1899, Col. Stevens graduated from Phillips Academy at Andover, Massachusetts in 1917, and from Yale University in 1921. He was awarded the honorary degree of Ll. D. by Presbyterian college in 1938.

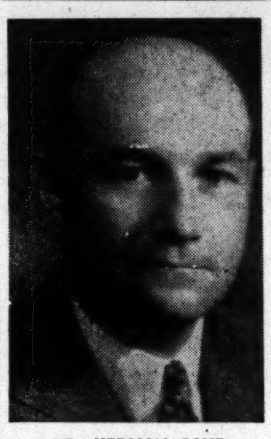
During World War I, he served as Second Lieutenant in the Field Artillery and at the close of the war, became associated with J. P. Stevens and Company, Inc., in New York City. In 1929 he was elevated to the presidency of this firm.

He has seen previous service in the Quartermaster Corps, having served on the staff of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in 1933, and as Chief of the Textile Branch under Edward R. Stettinious, Jr., in 1940.

Col. Stevens attended the first Civilian Orientation Course conducted by the army at the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and graduated the day before the Japanese attask on Pearl Harbor.

Impressive Ceremonies To Mark Coveted Award To Local Mills

Four Representatives Of Employees To Receive Emblems This Afternoon; Numerous Notables Will Participate In Ceremonies to Begin At 2:45



MR. HERMAN CONE

Mr. Herman Cone, President of Proximity Manufacturing Co., and Revolution Cotton Mills will formally accept the Army-Navy E Pennant which will be awarded the local mills this afternoon.

Before a crowd of probably more than 10,000 persons, the men and women of the four local mills will be signally honored this afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, when the significant Army-Navy E will be presented the four plants for excellence in production of war materials.

The Honorable J. Melville Broughton, Governor of North Carolina, will make the address of welcome, after which Col. Robert T. Stevens, Chief of the Clothing and Textile branch, Procurement Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, U. S. Army, will formally present the pennant. After being raised by the Greensboro Home Guard, it will be formally accepted by Mr. Herman Cone, President of Proximity Manufacturing company and Revolution Cotton Mills.

After presentation and acceptance of the pennant, Lt. Huger S. King, of the Sixth Naval District, Charleston, S. C., will present Army-Navy E emblems to the employees of the mills. Lt. King takes the place of Capt. Alfred T. Clay, U. S. Navy, who was ordered out of the state unexpectedly and will not be able to attend the ceremonies. The emblems will be received by John H. Murphy, of Proximity; William F. Loman, of White Oak; Jeffie L. Oakley of Revolution and Columbus I. Brooks, of Print Works, who will represent the workers of their respective mills. These four men represent 152 years of continuous service to the Cone Mills, and are the oldest in point of service with the exception of two employees with equal records. Mary Murphy, sister of John H. Murphy, and Lester Oakley, brother of Jeffie L. Oakley, began work at the same time.

Mr Loman will accept the emblems in behalf of all the employees.

The program for the ceremonies follows:

Master of Ceremonies—L.P.McLendon

Commencement Exercises Held At Haw River School

Sixteen seniors were presented diplomas at the Graduation exercises May 10th. On Sunday evening, May 9th, the Baccalaureate Sermon for Haw River high school was delivered by Rev. James S. Cox, Rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Burlington. In his very inspirational message, Rev. Cox stressed three principles which every graduate should remember and live by—courage, perserverance, and loyalty.

Reverend M. D. Smith, pastor of Haw River Baptist church gave the invocation, and Rev. A. C. Edens, pastor of the Haw River Methodist church, read the scripture lesson for the evening.

Final commencement exercises were held Monday evening at 8:00 P. M. in the school auditorium.

Goldie Alvis, salutatorian, gave the welcome address. She then presented Alma Dean King, who represented the Spirit of Haw River school and who gave a brief review of the efforts of the pupils in the school in the task of winning the war. Scenes dipicting some of the work done during the year followed.

Miss Anthony's fourth grade presented a dance, portraying the importance of keeping children happy. A health skit was given by Miss Wilkin's grade; an explanation of the scrap drive in the school and community by Delores Cole and Jimmy Best; a first aid scene by Donnell Barham, Jimmie Hendry, and Reggie May; and sale of defense stamps by Miss Yarborough's second and third grade. Miss Brannock's Home Economics class gave, in speech and song, a very colorful scene on nutrition.

The final scene was patriotic; Carlton Stout, Claude Kidd, Jr., and Coy Clayton sang songs of the Army Air Corps, of the Marines, and the Navy. Allen Pearson and Billie Carden represented Uncle Sam and Liberty, respectively. The scene was climaxed by the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Bobby Rudd and the Glee club.

Certificates were presented to thirty-eight graduates of the eighth grade by Mr. J. R. Barker, principal of the school.

Mr. R. E. Stratford presented the Bessie Wilkins Memorial Declamation Medal to Allen Pearson and the Brooks Memorial recitation Medal to Elsie Huffstetler. The Long Scholarship medal was presented to Vivian Waddell for the highest average in high school. She also won the Reader's Digest award which is given to the Valedictorian of the class.

Willard Abernathy presented a gift from the class to the school. He also gave gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Bain, gradeparents, and to Martin Flynt and Ronald Nash, class mascots.

Rev. Homer P. Starr presented a Bible, gift of the Parent-Teachers Association, to each graduate.

Diplomas were presented to sixteen graduates by Mr. P. C. Beatty, chairman of the school board.

Vivian Waddell, Valedictorian, closed the program with a farewell address.

The names of the graduates are: Willard Abernathy, Frank Bain Jr., Richard Flynt, Hal Isley, Buddy Jeffreys, Elwood Johnston, Wilbert Nash, Thomas Smith, Norman Snotherly, Ralph Thompson, Goldie Alvis, Corrine Hicks, Mary Ruth Holt, Beatrice Neese, Vivian Waddell, and Eva Way.

Team Party Given By Methodist Youth Of Haw River

Sometime ago there were two teams formed in the Methodist Youth organization for the purpose of increasing attendance. The losing team was to give the winning team a party. The colors of the organization, blue and gold, were used.

Saturday night was the scene of a backward party, given the Gold team by the Blue team in the basement of Holt's chapel. The guests wore something backward as their ticket to the party.

First came the spelling bee with the words spelled backward. As the evening progressed more backward games were played, relaying racing, etc.

A cold drink and cookies were served as a climax for the evenings fun.

Miss Constance Cates, leader of the Blue team, had charge of the games.

Capt. Clay Unable To Attend Ceremonies

Word has been received here that Capt. Alfred T. Clay, U. S. Navy, who was to have presented the Army-Navy E emblems to the employees today, will be unable to attend the presentation exercises. Government orders require his presence out of the state today, making it impossible for him to be present.

Lt. Huger S. King, of the Sixth Naval District, Charleston, has been ordered here to substitute for Capt. Clay in making the presentation.

Statewide Safety Conference To Be Held On May 20-21 For Year Of 1943

Plans have now been completed for the Fourteenth Annual Statewide Safety conference to be held in Charlotte, Thursday and Friday, May 20 and 21. First Edition programs have been mailed and we are looking forward to another successful meeting.

Occupational accidents killed approximately 18,500 workers in 1942, an increase of 500 over the 1941 total. Non-fatal injuries totalled about 1,250,000 including approximately 70,000 permanent disabilities. Absence from work due to non-fatal injuries, both on and off the job, was great enough to be the equivalent to closing down the entire airplane and shipbuilding industries for 54 days!

While the war news during the past several weeks has been bright, we have by no means won the victory. Many of our sons, brothers, sweethearts will give up their lives before the final peace is ours. That we on the Home Front can hasten the day of victory and save the lives of many loved ones is a known fact. The whole responsibility for an early peace does not by any means belong to those on the battle front. We here at home have a very definite part of this responsibility. We must produce more than ever before in the history of our country, and this must be done today—not tomorrow.

We are working against time—time that means the difference between an early return home of our victorious sons and a long-delayed victory costing many more valuable lives.

Accidents have no place in the picture today. They have never been welcome, but now accidents involving loss of life or time are calamities that must be avoided. Recently, Major General Campbell, of the United States Army said: "Time lost today on the production front means lives lost tomorrow on the fighting front."

This year's Safety Conference is devoted to the problem of Conserving Manpower for Warpower. Two full days will be given to the discussing of ways and means of preventing loss of our manpower on account of useless accidents. Subjects for discussion have been carefully selected, and speakers have only one thought in mind—to prevent something that will have a definite bearing on our production efforts. The time spent at the conference will be well spent, and could, in no sense of the word, be considered time lost. Regardless of how busy you may be you do have time to attend one or more sessions of the Conference, as what you learn may be the means of saving countless days otherwise lost on account of some accident that could have been prevented had someone known how.

PROXIMITY PROX. PRINT WORKS — WHITE OAK REVOLUTION

Greensboro, North Carolina, Friday, May 14, 1943

Welcome To Our Guests

In behalf of the men and women of Proximity, White Oak, Print Works and Revolution, the Textorian desires to welcome to our celebration today the many out of town distinguished guests who are honoring us by their presence. We accord them a hearty welcome and trust that their stay with us will be as inspiring to them as it will be to us.

We also extend a hearty welcome to our fellow townsmen who are joining us today on this important occasion.

Upon This Record We Must Build

Upon this record we must build. Today, as the men and women of Proximity, White Oak, Print Works and Revolution are honored by the Army and Navy of the United States, they each should resolve to so build upon their past achievements that when six months have passed, they again will be recognized as having performed excellently.

This day should serve as a springboard to greater achievement. It should serve as a background for that realization which will impel them toward the type of performance which total war really demands of them.

A recent lecturer, who had spent several years in war-torn Europe, stated that upon his return to this country he was disappointed to note that the United States is the only one of the warring nations which is not measuring up to the demands of a total war. The demands of total war, which we must fight, are extremely great. If these demands are not met by us in this country, ultimate defeat may be our penalty.

Thus far, the average American citizen does not seem to have been impressed with the true meaning of total war or with the obligations that total war imposes upon him. In the words of "Labor and Industry", a monthly bulletin issued by the North Carolina Department of Labor, "At the outset, the problem looks as if it were largely one of morale. This is because while we are fighting a total war in words and slogans, we are not really fighting a total war at all in the sense that our enemies are. Most of us fail to realize that our national existence is literally at stake, and this failure results in our not putting our very best into the war efforts. Aside from purely military operation, a great many of us continue to live pretty much as if there were no war going on."

Our past record has been better than average; in fact, if it had not, we would not today receive the recognition accorded us. We are proud to assume that we have contributed well to the prosecution of the war, and we can obtain considerable gratification over the knowledge that our efforts have truly supported the efforts of our fighting men. We do not believe, however, that even with our record of "EXCELLENCE" that we have as yet measured up to the requirements of the times—the requirements of the total war we must fight to a successful conclusion. We, therefore, on this great day in our history, should dedicate ourselves to a wholehearted performance, such a performance that no one may now, or in the future, point an accusing finger at us and say, "You did not do your part on the industrial front." Let us resolve to so build upon our record of today that we can have no reason to live in regret tomorrow. Let our performance on the production front measure up fully to the standards we have every right to expect of our men on the fighting fronts.

Work Will Win

(The following thought-provoking editorial was contributed for this, our E award issue.)

Work won the Army-Navy "E" Production Award for the four Cone Mills in Greensboro. The work of each man and woman goes into the bigger sample and the bigger samples are woven together into the great big quilt. Over across the oceans and the battlefields are the enemy workers, each working at his own sample, trying to make more samples than we can make, so that their quilt will be bigger than ours. Supported by the work are the Soldiers, with their desperate needs in the heat of battle, their lives depending on our work getting done in good time and of good quality. The Army-Navy "E" Production Award says to us: "Our work has been done in good time, and was of good quality." Our Soldiers at the front will hear about this award. They will know that lateness of delivery and poorness of quality was no fault of their friends in the Cone Mills in Greensboro. We have worked well and we take pride in the knowledge that we have worked well.

But what of the future? Can we hold on to the Production Award that we have won? What will be the judgment of the Army and Navy when they review the production of the next six months? They will review the production every six months. They must find our work has not slackened. We are now deep in the middle of the job of outworking our enemies, and we must break their hearts with our production figures and quality, until they despair of equalling our courage, tenacity, and persistent, day in and day out production. We are on the way to breaking their spirit with our working ways and working courage.

We take pride that our jobs are directly contributing to the War Effort. Many people have left their old homes and jobs to find War Effort jobs, but we have had War Effort jobs brought to us. We take pride that our work is a direct contribution to the great struggle, and this knowledge revives us when we would get tired or discouraged. When we see the Soldiers on our streets, we stand shoulder to shoulder with them, thinking that our work helps their fight. We have helped them win Africa with our work: Now we are working harder to win Europe.

This May our Soldiers have won Tunisia, and we have won the "E". Next November let us have won the Star for our "E', so that our Soldiers can have won Italy!

To the Men and Women of Cone Mills of Greensboro

Together we have produced fine textile products. Together we have kept pace with the needs of our armed forces. Together we are supplying quantities of war materials for free men throughout the world in their fight against the Axis. This is our privilege and duty—in the performance of which we have sought no honor or reward beyond the preservation of those things which to each of us mean freedom and independence.

Yet, in the faithful performance of our work—we have gained the highest recognition from our Country for a job well done. The "E" Flags which will fly above our plants and the "E" Pins which each of us will so proudly wear, will be treasured by each of us for our part in backing up our fighting boys and our Country.

Just as the Medal of Honor is the highest award to a soldier for valor on the field of battle—the Army and Navy "E" Award is the highest award to those in production. It becomes a sacred trust—a challenge to keep faith with our fighting men—a responsibility of ours to make still greater contributions toward Victory—to preserve for this great nation of ours the American way of life.

THE JOINTS WON'T BEND

At one time all arthritis was regarded more or less hopeless. Through recent advances, at least two types, namely the infectious and nutritional, can be cured. The rest of the cases may be classified in the third group, for which palliative relief may be had.

Among the most common ailments that trouble humans are the painful rheumatic and arthritic disorders. A distinguished physician, the late Sir William Osler, is reported to have said: "I always want to jump out of the window whenever a person with arthritis comes into my office." Various causes have been given for these disorders, which the layman often calls "chronic rheumatism." The term is ordinarily applied to a group of symptoms chief of which is ill-defined pain in bones, muscles, or joints. Some patients are disabled for many years; others get relief when the weather is mild; still others are chronically ill and in need of bed care for long periods.

What Is the Cause?

There is as yet no definite scientific information as to a single cause of arthritis and rheumatism. For some time the theory of "focal infection" was held forth. The idea behind the theory was that changes in distant parts of the body may be brought about from a remote focus or point of infection. The changes that actually occur are inflammatory in nature, with pain, tenderness, stiffness of joints. Tonsils, teeth, the gall bladder, the intestinal tract, and other parts of the body have been held responsible. Certainly it is wise to have infected teeth and tonsils removed, and to be under medical care for a troublesome gall bladder. But even when teeth and tonsils were removed, the arthritis has only occasionally been improved, and less frequently completely cured. This does not mean that cures have not followed such surgery. The contrary is true, for most dramatic cures have been observed.

Other theories as to cause have relied on metabolism, which relates to the body's use of the food consumed and to the question of diet. Causes and cures are still elusive. We hope to catch up with them before long.

For sufferers from these common disorders, the first recommendation is that they put themselves under the care of a physician. He may prescribe several things, including a visit to the dentist, removal of infected tonsils and adenoids, or other surgical measures. Drugs which give relief are available to the physician. Local rest for the painful inflamed joint or limb is an obvious method of relief. Heat in various forms gives relief for longer or shorter periods of time. First find out whether some definite measure may relieve and even cure. This is possible.

Sixty Piece Band To Play Today

B.T.C. Band To Play For E Award Ceremonies; Will Offer Half Hour Prelude To Opening of Program

The 424th-425th Army Air Forces Band of Basic Training Center No. 10, wil participate this afternoon in the Army-Navy "E" Award presentation ceremonies to the men and women of the Proximity Manufacturing company and the Revolution Cotton Mills.

During the program, to be held at 2:45 P.M. in the field opposite the Textorian and Revolution offices, the 60-piece band will play the Star Sprangled Banner, The Stars and Stripes Forever (Sousa), and America.

The band will offer a half-hour prelude before the opening of the program. Included among the numbers to be present are: The Army Air Corps (Crawford); The American Patrol (Meacham); National Emblem (Bagley); Overture to the Student Prince (Romberg); We're The Tech Command (Lt. Riseman, Pvts, Friedman, Novack, Ockner); and Symphonic March (Mancini).

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Developments of the past two weeks have again demonstrated the crying need for a national labor policy. Complaints pouring into the House and Senate say that the present vacillation on this vital issue makes it impossible to plan intelligently for the efficient utilization of manpower.

Points at present issue in a spreading labor revolt are, first, the War Manpower Commission's "job freeze" order issued at the President's direction and, second, the War Labor Board's inflexible application of the "Little Steel" yardstick in wage cases as requested by Mr. Roosevelt. Already the Administration has shown some tendency to modify the "job freeze". WMC Chairman Paul McNutt has announced that the order will be relaxed to permit essential workers to take higher paying jobs with new employers anywhere in the country provided the Commission finds the transfer will aid in the war program.

Adding to the complications of the manpower picture is the unemployment in many sections of the country being caused by cut-backs on war orders and changes in designs and specifications. Reports of factories closing down because of changes in production planning are coming in from all parts of the country. These conditions are causing a constant shifting of manpower supply.

Another sidelight concerns the decision of a Federal District Judge in California upholding the right of labor unions to restrict the use of labor-saving devices. The case involves dismissal of antitrust indictments against 78 contractors and labor unions who had refused to use spray-guns to paint government housing projects. This decision has prompted Congressional advocates of anti-featherbedding legislation to urge speedy action on pending measures to deal with this type of labor abuse. These legislators say it is strange that the nation has to be subjected to drastic manpower regulations when union bosses refuse to let their members use methods and devices that would go far toward helping labor shortages.

The House Military Affairs Committee has tentatively ended its hearings on a number of manpower bills, including the Smith Bill (H.R.2239) to prohibit the unionization of foremen. The Committee will meet in executive session to determine the course to follow in respect to the various measures.

Since the first of the year OPA has eliminated 70 of its 460 price reports and questionnaires. "Since the beginning of the war program, American businessmen have been burdened with hundreds of government forms and questionnaires," Price Administrator Prentiss Brown said. "Filling out these reports and returning them to government agencies has required time, patience, and expense. Many of them were unnecessary, but in the future, wherever possible, we are going to try to give the question marks in the Government Printing Office a well-earned rest."

Miss Alvis Weds Sgt. Irwin Ham

Announcement has been made of the marriage April 4, 1943, in Cathage, Mo., of Miss Mary Louise Alvis and Sgt. Irwin Ham, both of Greensboro. The bridegroom, stationed by the army at nearby Camp Crowder, was with Morrison-Neese furniture company before beginning military duty February 1942. He is the third of the four sons of Mrs. Leon M. Ham, 605 North Greene street, and the late Mr. Ham. Three of the four are in the service.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Alvis, 1200 12th street, and for the 18 months before going to Missouri to be married was employed in Bridgeport, Conn., by Vought-Skiorsky Aircraft corporation. The couple are living in Carthage. The bride's father attended the wedding, a simple affair at the home of the officiating Baptist minister, Rev. W. M. Hunt, and gave his daughter in marriage. Corp. John Hetzel, Camp Crowder, was best man.

American plane production in April will approach 7,000, WPB Chief Donald Nelson reports.

"Yes," said the lawyer to the grocer, who had come to consult him, "undoubtedly you've got the best case that I've ever heard."

"Thanks," said the client, quickly grabbing his hat and making for the door.

"Here, what's the rush," asked the astonished lawyer. "Where are you going?"

"I'm going to settle this case out of court and that right away!" the other informed him.

40 PER CENT STRONGER

Nuts and bolts used in steam turbines and on other heavy duty jobs can be made 40 per cent stronger by means of a new tapered design.

Approximately three-fourths of all life insurance funds invested in the first two months of this year went into U. S. or Canadian Government Bonds, as direct financing aid to the war effort.

"But I told you it's the best case I ever heard."

"Maybe so," said his client, "but not for me. I've told you the other fellow's story."

Highway Deaths Still Here

While British highway deaths were 16 per cet lower in 1942 than in 1939, 27 per cent more children died as a result of highway accidents. This should serve as a warning to American parents not to relax supervision in wartime.
